

Presentation of Ideas for Solving Social Problems 2023

- A Place for Co-creation Learning -

Summary	The ability to confront social issues and create ideas to solve them is the kind of doctoral training that is widely sought by society today. It is an important process to grow from a person who can simply conduct research to a person who can truly "conduct research that contributes to society. We will hold the Idea Presentation Conference for the solution of social issues again this year, as we did last year, in the hope that you will improve your transferable skills through the process of designing solutions for social implementation to solve problems.
